

A TRAIL FOR EVERYONE AT AMETHYST BROOK CONSERVATION AREAS

AMHERST & PELHAM, MASS

The conservation lands around Amethyst Brook, owned by the Town of Amherst, the Town of Pelham and Kestrel Land Trust, are loved for wonderful trails along a babbling brook.

SUGGESTED ROUTE

This trail is nearly 2 miles, and begins at the Town of Amherst's trailhead parking lot on Pelham Road in Amherst. Follow the trail away from the road through the fields, bearing right to pass by the Town of Amherst's Community Gardens. Cross a bridge and turn right to continue following the trail along the brook.

Look for a stone spiral meditation labyrinth on the left. Then bear right and pass another bridge to continue on the blue-blazed Dorie Goldman Trail onto Kestrel land. Follow the trail through the woods, then turn left away from the brook, notice a natural spring on the right, and walk up a short hill. At the top (the mid-way point of the hike) is a nice spot to take in the view of the tree canopy. Continue to follow the blue blazes through the woods, which are owned by the Town of Pelham, and make a left at the main red-blazed Robert Frost trail, which takes you back down the hill toward the brook.

Turn right to follow the trail back the way you came along the brook to the first bridge and cross the brook to follow the trail back to the parking lot.
